Today's Features

6 Terry Allen

In this day of recruiting services and newsletters, it is refreshing to see a less publicized high school senior go on to stardom at the college level. Annabelle Vaughan profiles Clemson's soon to be all-time rushing leader, who most Clemson coaches thought would develop into a defensive back.

49 Walk-Ons

Danny Ford has been fortunate over the last decade in that he has had many outstanding non-scholarship players contribute to the Tigers. This year Rob Bodine and Mitch Belton are continuing the tradition, as Tim Bourret explains.

53 Notes of Interest

Clemson has been ranked in the Top 20 of the AP poll 41 consecutive weeks. Clemson's recent history in the poll and a fascinating story about an athlete who played on the winning side for both Clemson and South Carolina on "Big Thursday" are two of the items of interest authored by Tim Bourret this week.

55 Coaches Families

Each week in October we will feature family photos of assistant football coaches.

61 Freshmen of Influence

Last year's Clemson freshman recruiting class was rated as one of the five best in the nation. The rating services are proving to be prophetic as no less than eight first-year freshmen have seen action this year. Annabelle Vaughan spoke with a number of the rookies.

63 Rodney Fletcher

Clemson's starting wide receiver came to Clemson as a junior college quarterback. Now he is the top receiver on a Top 20 team. Mickey Plyler takes a look at the Georgia native who matriculated to Clemson by way of a California junior college.

79 Academic Learning Center

Clemson leads the nation in many areas and it will soon add another category to the list. It is believed that Clemson's Academic Learning Center, scheduled to open in the fall of 1990, will be the largest free standing building in the nation whose sole purpose is tutoring athletes. Annabelle Vaughan gives us a tour of the facility.

109 Chamber of Commerce

Clemson football has a positive effect on the economic growth of the upstate and this homecoming weekend is just one example of its vibrant economic atmosphere. Greg Wilson tells us about the Upstate Upclose program.

111 Johnny Rembert

Clemson's All-America linebacker of the early 1980s has developed into an All-Pro linebacker with the New England Patriots. He adorns the cover of the 1989 Pats' press guide. Former Clemson student assistant Jeff Rhodes talked with Rembert about his 1988 All-Pro season.

112 The Last Word

Bob Bradley takes us back to Frank Howard's last great victory, his final season triumph at Georgia Tech.

Tigers with Strong Georgia Ties

Clemson's senior class hopes to close out a perfect career against teams from the state of Georgia when the Tigers meet Georgia Tech on October 14. Today Clemson will attempt to make it a perfect 6-0 record against teams from the state of Georgia. No Clemson senior class since 1903 has had a perfect career record against teams from the state of Georgia. The class of 1903 had a 6-0 record against Georgia teams.

Clemson has 19 players, including eight starters (including Chris Gardocki) on its Top 75 active roster (not including those being red-shirted). Clemson has more players from Georgia on its starting unit than any other state. Clemson has six players from South Carolina, three from North Carolina, two from New Jersey and Florida and one each from North Dakota and Pennsylvania. This list counts Joe Henderson as the starting tailback, so when Terry Allen is in the lineup Clemson actually has nine from Georgia.

We are not talking fringe players either. Players from Georgia rank as Clemson's top passer, top rusher, top scorer, top receiver, top tackler and top pass interceptor. Here is a list of Clemson's Georgia natives on the active 75-man roster:

Terry Allen, RB, Jr, Commerce, Starter (injured)
Doug Brewster, LB, Jr, Athens, Starter
DeChane Cameron, QB, So, LaGrange, Reserve
Chip Davis, WR, Sr, Evans, Reserve
Jeb Flesch, OG, So, Morrow, Starter
Rodney Fletcher, WR, Sr, Barnesville, Starter
Chris Gardocki, P-PK, So, Stone Mt., Starter
Eric Geter, CB, Fr, Newnan, Reserve
Wayne Harps, OLB, Sr, Griffin, Reserve (injured)
Kenzil Jackson, LB, Fr, LaGrange, Reserve
John Johnson, OLB, Jr, LaGrange, Starter
Stacy Lewis, WR, Fr, Baxley, Reserve
Stacy Long, OT, Jr, Griffin, Starter
Otis Moore, DT, Sr, Augusta, Starter
Chris Morocco, QB, Sr, Athens, Starter
Robert O'Neal, FS, Fr, Clarkston, Reserve
Robbie Spector, WR, Jr, Calhoun, Reserve
Fernandez West, WR, Sr, Cornelia, Reserve
Jerome Williams, TE, Sr, Gainesville, Reserve

Offensive Line Had Best Game vs. Virginia

Clemson's offensive line had its best game collectively against Virginia. The total offensive figure of 474 yards and 264 yards rushing could have told us that. But, the grades issued by Larry Van Der Heyden and Bill D'Andrea also affirm this belief.

All six Clemson starters on the offensive line graded 75 percent or better for the first time this season and the group combined for a season high 54 knockdown blocks. Eric Harmon led the way in knockdowns with 13 and he now has 50 for the season. Jeb Flesch and Hank Phillips both had 11, while Stacy Long had seven and Bruce Bratton five. Stacy Fields added seven from the starting tight end slot and received a 90 percent grade. Jerome Williams actually had more knockdowns than Fields as he contributed a career high nine. Flesch had the highest grade among the interior offensive linemen with an 83 percent.

Georgia Tech Update

Georgia Tech is on a high after beating Maryland last Saturday at Bobby Dodd Stadium, giving Bobby Ross his first ACC win as Georgia Tech head coach. It was a sweet win for Ross, who broke a 16-game ACC losing streak against the team he coached to three straight ACC titles between 1983 and 1985. He once led Maryland to 17 straight ACC wins.

Georgia Tech is improving offensively week-by-week with the maturity of freshman quarterback Shawn Jones. The Yellow Jacket signal caller has completed 57 of 103 passes for an average of 157.3 yards per game this year.

He had a career day against Maryland with 16 of 23 for 209 yards and four touchdowns. No Georgia Tech quarterback had thrown for four TDs in a single game in the last 17 years. He threw three of them in the third quarter alone when he helped Georgia Tech make up a 14-point deficit. "The biggest difference in their (Georgia Tech) offense is the play of Shawn Jones," said Terp coach Joe Krivak after last week's game. "He gives them a lot of versatility."

Jones is a 55.3 percent passer and he is also averaging 4.0 yards per rush. Opponents have gotten to him just twice all year on sacks and he is second on the team in rushing.

Second to the ACC's top rusher that is. Jerry Mays is ranked among the top 10 career active rushers in the NCAA with over 2800 career yards. He is currently 11th in the nation in rushing with 118.8 yards per game and he averages 6.4 yards per rush, best in the ACC.

"Mays is a tough back, he reminds me a lot of Stacy Driver when he played for us a few years ago," said Ford in praise of Mays. "He can beat you a lot of ways." That is shown in the national all-purpose running statistics as Mays averages 144.5 yards per game in rushing, receiving and kickoff returns, the 15th best figure in the nation. He is the top rusher, pass receiver, all-purpose runner and scorer on the Georgia Tech team.

Ken Swilling is Georgia Tech's top defensive player from his free safety position. The sophomore who was on the Sporting News Freshman All-America team has 55 tackles this year to tie for the team lead, seven more than he had all of last season.

Ken is the cousin of former Georgia Tech All-American Pat Swilling, who is now a starting All-Pro linebacker with the New Orleans Saints. Pat also holds the distinction of holding the ACC single game sack record with seven recorded in one game in 1985. Ken had an outstanding game against Clemson last year with 10 tackles.

Morocco's Rating Fourth Best Under Ford

Clemson quarterback Chris Morocco had a passing efficiency rating of 182.13 last week against Virginia and that was the fourth best single game efficiency rating by a Danny Ford quarterback (min. 15 attempts). Morocco now has a rating of 134.6 for the season, which would be the second best by a Clemson starting quarterback under Ford if the season ended today. Morocco has thrown just one interception in 74 attempts this year and has a 58.1 completion percentage.

Here is a list of single game passing efficiency bests under Ford:

Rating	Name	Opp	Year	Statistics
235.43	Mike Eppley	Virginia	'83	12-15-199-0-2
232.48	Mike Eppley	Maryland	'83	11-16-194-0-3

174.42	Homer Jordan	Maryland	'81	20-29-270-1-3
162.80	Homer Jordan	Duke	'81	13-19-198-1-1

Morocco also had a 66.7 percent completion percentage in the win over Virginia, just the eighth time under Ford (min 15 attempts) that a quarterback completed at least two-thirds of his passes. The best under Ford is Eppley's 80 percent (12-15) vs. Virginia in 1983.

Jeb Flesch had 11 knockdown blocks against Virginia and was named ACC Player-of-the-Week. Clemson's starting line combined for a season-high 54 KDs in the pivotal 34-20 win.

John Johnson is a native of Georgia who hopes Clemson can make it six in a row over teams from the Peach State.

Homecoming Streak

The Clemson Tigers have a 17-0-1 record on Homecoming since a 1970 loss to Auburn. That day, Heisman Trophy winner Pat Sullivan led the Auburn Tigers to a 44-0 victory over Clemson.

Today's game marks the first time that Georgia Tech has been a Clemson Homecoming opponent. Clemson is 46-15-2 in Homecoming football games.

Here is Clemson's unbeaten Homecoming Streak since 1971:

1971	Wake Forest	10-9, Clemson
1972	Virginia	37-21, Clemson
1973	Virginia	32-27, Clemson
1974	Duke	17-13, Clemson
1975	Wake Forest	16-14, Clemson
1976	Duke	18-18, tie
1977	Virginia	31-0, Clemson
1978	Virginia Tech	38-7, Clemson
1979	Virginia	17-7, Clemson
1980	Virginia Tech	13-10, Clemson
1981	Virginia	27-0, Clemson

1982	Kentucky	24-6, Clemson
1983	Virginia	42-21, Clemson
1984	Duke	54-21, Clemson
1985	Virginia	27-24, Clemson
1986	Duke	35-3, Clemson
1987	Virginia	38-21, Clemson
1988	Duke	49-17, Clemson

Henderson Outstanding vs. Georgia Tech

Joe Henderson, who had 105 yards rushing and 159 yards in all-purpose rushing against Virginia, has had two fine games against Georgia Tech in his career. The native of New Jersey had a 95-yard kickoff return for touchdown in 1987 and it broke a 25-year stretch without a kickoff return for touchdown by a Clemson player.

Last year Henderson led Clemson in rushing with 116 yards in 21 attempts, one of three 100-yard games in his career. He also had 44 yards in kickoff returns last year, giving him a career high 160 yards in all-purpose rushing against Tech in 1988. He has scored one touchdown in each game, has three kickoff returns for 139 yards and 23 rushing attempts for 133 yards. Wake Forest is the only ACC team that has allowed more rushing yardage to Henderson over his career.

Henderson had his best game of the 1989 season against Virginia when he had 16 attempts for 105 yards and a 45-yard touchdown run. He also made his second career reception and had 159 yards in all-purpose running, second best of his career.

O'Neal Sets Freshman Record

Clemson freshman defensive back Robert O'Neal broke Terry Kinard's freshman record for interceptions in a season when he picked one off on national TV against Virginia. The native of Clarkston, GA has four interceptions this year and is ranked 14th in the nation in that category. His four interceptions in six games breaks Terry Kinard's freshman record of three interceptions in 1979. Kinard was a red-shirt freshman and O'Neal is a first-year or true freshman.

Terry Allen

By Annabelle Vaughan

During the summer, when Clemson was not quite as frenzied with football fever as it is these days, a group of Clemson football players were in a university dormitory, entertaining themselves with back copies of Sports Illustrated and other sports magazines. After a while, a lively discussion began about the greatest college running backs of all time. A couple of players argued that, without a doubt, Herschel Walker was the best during his days at Georgia. Another insisted that no college running back can ever be compared to Tony Dorsett. A third party praised the attributes of Eric Dickerson.

One of the chief participants in this friendly dispute was Tiger tailback Terry Allen. He voiced his opinion vehemently for his choice, naming the reasons why that particular back was better than the others. His excitement was obvious as he spoke of his former heroes.

A few years from now, when a group of college football players gather to discuss the greats of the game, there may be another name on the list. And if a group of Clemson athletes should gather in the future to discuss the same topic, there will definitely be another back to argue about. Without a doubt, Clemson's Terry Allen is the stuff that legends are made of, and even if he can't yet be compared to a Walker, Dorsett or Dickerson, Terry Allen will always be remembered for his power running, and loved by anyone who wears orange.

Although he is only halfway through his junior season, Terry Allen is well on his way to becoming legendary. With 2,645 career yards, Allen lacks only 270 yards of surpassing Kenny Flowers's 2,914 yard total to become Clemson's all-time leading rusher. With still another season remaining after 1989, it is doubtful that his record will be easily surpassed. His 143 yards rushing against Duke two weeks ago was his 10th career 100-yard performance, one shy of the record for 100-yard games held by Kenny Flowers and Buddy Gore.

Without a doubt, Allen has compiled quite an impressive portfolio since the first time he stepped into a Clemson uniform. His success has been even more amazing considering he came to Clemson as a defensive back. "When I was in high school, I was recruited as a defensive back by several schools," says Allen. "The Clemson coaches wanted me to play defensive back also, but they said they would give me a chance to play running back. That's all I needed to come here. I wanted to run the ball."

Saying that Allen simply runs the ball is an understatement. He carries the ball. He runs over people. He is the strongest player pound-for-pound on the Clemson team, with an incredible power ratio of 7.91. His speed is also impressive, as he has run the third best 40-yard dash time on the team with a 4.45 clocking. But his ability to withstand hard licks, stay on his feet, and keep running is the aspect of his game that leaves opponents gasping.

"I love to run the football," says Allen, with a rare, wide smile. "And I would rather give it out than take it when it comes to getting hit. The ground doesn't move, that's why I try so hard to keep my balance. It's not that I have great balance, I'm just determined not to hit that hard ground. Falling on the ground hurts a lot more than hitting somebody."

Getting tackled is perhaps the only aspect of the game of football that Terry Allen does not enjoy. No matter how far he has just carried the ball, when he is finally stopped he leaps up, disgusted that he has allowed himself to be tackled. "I'm not supposed to be tackled," says Allen, amazed that his actions would even be questioned. "It is my job to score. If the first person to hit me, brings me down, I'm not doing my job. Whenever I get to the point where I don't mind being tackled, I'm not going to be any good."

"I want to score every time I touch the ball," Allen continues. "I guess I need to realize that I can't always make the big play, but whenever I get the ball in my hands, I'm fighting for that goalline. I want to do whatever it takes to help the team win. Scoring six points is the best thing I can do to help us do that."

The goalline is a place where Allen has spent a great deal of time over the past three seasons. Going into the Virginia game, Allen had tied the record for consecutive touchdown games, as he had scored touchdowns in nine consecutive games. He is currently ranked ninth in the Clemson record book in career scoring with 150 points. When the goalline is in site, he is practically unstoppable. He runs through massive linemen and linebackers, he hurls his body over stacks of players, he has even somersaulted into the endzone a time or two.

"I am a very competitive person," says Allen. "I like to compete in almost anything. But I didn't think I would enjoy just any sport, I like the head-to-head combat of football. I like it when it's just me against them ... and it doesn't matter how many of them there is."

To encounter Terry Allen somewhere away from the football field, you would scarcely believe that he is the same dynamo that drives defenses crazy on Saturday afternoons. He doesn't say much, unless he is around his friends on the team. His expression is usually one of utter seriousness. But a smile brightens the face of Clemson's durable back quickly when he is asked how he feels about football.

Allen has benefitted from some outstanding blocking but much of his yardage is the result of tough, north-south running.

"I love it. There's nothing else I can say about football except I love it. I know that there is going to be a time in my life when I won't be able to play football anymore, and I will be prepared for that when it comes, but now, while I am able to play, I enjoy it so much. I just go out there and take all my frustrations out on the field. That's when I feel the happiest, when I'm carrying the football. There is only one thing in the whole world that I like doing more than playing football, and that is making my Mama smile. Whenever I play, I want to do well so people will come up to her and compliment her. That means more than the records to me."

Allen also credits his mother, Laura, with one of the most important aspects of his success: his work habits. "My Mama has always worked hard and she taught me to work hard," says Allen proudly. "She was a single parent, raising me and my little sister, and she had to work all the time. When I was in high school, I always had a job, so I was used to working when I came to Clemson.

"I don't like the work in practice though. I don't think anybody likes practice. But I know that to do well on Saturday, I have to do well during the week in practice. Everybody has to practice, so I might as well do a good job when I'm out there. It's just another day on the job."

Allen has taken his phenomenal success at Clemson in the same stride in which he takes practice. "The records don't mean a whole lot, except that I know that it makes my Mama happy," he says. "When I play, I don't think about breaking records, I just think about winning. I don't think about it much, but I always knew that the records would come. During my red-shirt year, I was talking to a friend one day and I told him we were going to rewrite the record books.

"But that doesn't mean that I'm the best running back to have ever played here. The other guys might not have gotten as many chances as I have or they might have played against better competition. Just because I have more yards, doesn't mean I'm the best. I'm not even the best athlete on our team. Joe Henderson is a much better athlete than me. He's faster and he's got more moves. I guess I've just been lucky, that's all."

And so have the fans who have been able to watch him. And so have the coaches who have had the opportunity to coach him. And so have the athletes who have had the opportunity to play with him. One of these athletes is freshman tailback Rodney Blunt, who saw action in two early season games for the Tigers before an injury forced him out of play."

"Terry became my personal coach that first week," Blunt remembers. "He made sure I knew all the plays and he helped ease my mind about the differences between high school and college football. He wanted me beside him on the sidelines every time I came off the field and he told me what I had done right and what I had done wrong. He showed me how to make the hard things easier. I don't know how I would have done without Terry's help."

The statistics and the record books will always remind Clemson followers of the incredible success Allen enjoyed on the field during his days as a Tiger. But his true success can only be described by those who have stood beside him in uniform. Here's what several teammates had to say about Terry Allen.

With 2645 yards, Allen lacks only 270 yards to surpass Kenny Flowers's 2914 total to become Clemson's all-time leading rusher.

Former teammate and tailback Kenny Flowers, whose records Allen stands to break this season: "Records are meant to be broken. The way Terry is running, his will never be broken. Terry was a first-year freshman when I was a senior and I could tell then that he had promise. Now, when I see him on T.V. running up a storm, I know he ranks right up there with the best backs in the game. He runs it right down your throat."

Cornerback Dexter Davis: "Practice is like a real game for Terry. He gives it all he has all the time. I respect him. If I was ever in the trenches, I would want Terry Allen right there beside me."

Tailback Rodney Blunt: "Terry punishes other players. He makes you pay for hitting him. He has great balance and that's something you can't learn. It's just natural ability."

Fullback Wesley McFadden: "There's only two things you can say about Terry. Number one, he's always ready to play. Number two, he loves the game of football. You don't need any more than that."

Allen has celebrated many touchdowns over the past three years and continues to chase Lester Brown's career record.

Dr. Max Lennon

When Max Lennon came to Clemson more than three years ago, he brought with him some definite ideas about what was needed in order for Clemson to reach its potential: more emphasis on research and the graduate program (the university's greatest potential for growth and immediate economic impact); increased private support for academics; more effort in frontier areas of research to aid South Carolina's traditional industries; a more global perspective in both academic programs and research; and a significant state investment in higher education.

Those were the ideas; now for the reality:

- more than a 60 percent increase in research funding in a single year
- the most successful private fund-raising year ever, with more than a 40 percent increase over last year's record-breaking total
- a landmark experiment in the field of biotechnology, plus research that is breaking new ground in advanced apparel manufacturing, composites, robotics and many other areas
- the addition of international academic programs and research partnerships involving Clemson with institutions in Japan, France, Germany, Italy, Egypt, China, Israel and Great Britain, among others
- a $5-million higher education initiative called the Cutting Edge

But the Lennon agenda is far from completed. The Clemson president sees more challenges, more opportunities, ahead. At a recent address to the faculty, he said, "We must continue to look for new ways to fulfill Clemson's land-grant mission: aggressively recruiting students into areas that are exclusive to Clemson — agriculture, forestry and textiles — and that have more job opportunities than graduates, increasing minority representation in the faculty and administration as well as the student body, and making Clemson more accessible.

"As a land grant college, we have an obligation in rural development and to help eliminate the pockets of poverty and illiteracy that remain in this state. Education is the answer, and we have an obligation to make education accessible to all people."

Lennon sees Clemson as still in the process of maturing into a major, comprehensive university with a regional and national reputation in its primary mission areas — science and technology. He has worked hard to bring together the necessary support system by involving not only faculty and staff but also legislators, business leaders and alumni in determining Clemson's future. And the future looks pretty bright. "Clemson is a very exciting place to be right now," he says.

Lennon came to Clemson from Ohio State University, where he had been executive dean for agriculture, home economics and natural resources. Lennon was also on the Ohio State Faculty Senate and was co-chairman of the Governor's commission on agriculture.

Previously, he had served as dean of the College of Agriculture, and as director of the Agricultural Experiment Station at the University of Missouri, and as associate dean and director of research in the College of Agricultural Sciences at Texas Tech University.

Lennon is a native of Columbus County, N.C., and earned his bachelor's degree and doctorate from N.C. State University. He began his teaching career at N.C. State.

The Clemson president has been active in a number of civic and professional groups, ranging from his local PTA and the South Carolina Research Authority to the National Dropout Prevention Fund and the International Development Institute.

In the fall of 1987, Lennon was named to the board of trustees of the Farm Foundation, a national organization devoted to improving research and education to benefit rural areas. He will serve a four-year term as the university representative on the board, which also includes farmers, legislators and executives of leading agricultural industries.

Lennon was appointed in 1988 to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Policy Advisory Committee for Science and Education Research Grants Program by Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Lyng, and was a keynote speaker at the AgBiotech '88 international conference in Washington.

This year Lennon also was appointed to chair a committee of top administrators and federal officials from 11 universities across the nation to work with congress on legislation relating to foreign assistance and international development. The committee is a project of the National Association of State Universities and land-grant colleges.

Lennon is married to Ruth Carter Lennon and they have two children, Daniel Ray (27) and Robin (24).

Dr. Max Lennon made outstanding contributions at N.C. State, Texas Tech, Missouri and Ohio State before becoming Clemson's president in 1986.

Bobby Robinson

The Clemson athletic program has been on the rise in just about all forms of athletics in recent years. Bobby Robinson is the leader of the department as its athletic director and his commitment to success in competition, academics and facilities has been the key to this level of distinction.

An examination of the chart on this page shows that Clemson has made a steady rise in the national men's all-sports poll since he took over for the 1985-86 academic year. Last year Clemson finished sixth in the USA Today All-Sports poll, its highest ranking in six years and the second straight year Clemson has finished in the top 10 in the nation. The number of Clemson All-ACC performers and All-Americans also reached all-time highs.

Both major revenue sports had banner years with the football team winning a third straight bowl and finishing in the top 10 in the nation. Danny Ford's gridders also won a third straight ACC title. The men's basketball team went to its second NCAA tournament in the last three years, and it marked the first time in Clemson history the Tigers took part in a January 1 Bowl game and the NCAA basketball tournament.

The baseball team also advanced to the NCAA regional finals, meaning Clemson was one of just three teams in the nation to win a bowl game, an NCAA tournament basketball game and an NCAA baseball tournament game. A total of nine teams, highlighted by a number-three finish for the Clemson golf team, finished in the top 20 of their respective polls. This is a total topped only by the 1986-87 and 1987-88 academic years, two other years in the Robinson era.

In academics, Clemson student-athletes had another outstanding year. Seventy-five young men and women had 3.0 or better grade-point averages each semester, with seven earning a perfect 4.0 GPA. The football team had three players named to the academic All-ACC team, and two students were named to Academic All-America teams. Over 30 former Tiger student-athletes received college degrees in the past 12 months.

The commitment to success in academics is further confirmed by the decision to build an academic learning center for student-athletes. Encompassing over Bobby Robinson is in his fifth full academic year as Clemson Athletic Director.

29,000 square feet, the center will feature classrooms, learning labs, and an auditorium, as well as office space for the academic advising staff, which now has four full-time staff members. It should be completed at a cost of $2.5 million by the fall of 1990.

In the area of facilities, Robinson has a record of success and accomplishments second to none. Recent capital improvements include the indoor tennis facility and the soccer stadium, with the learning center and completion of the baseball stadium coming soon. Major renovations recently completed include the golf practice area, cross country trail, stadium locker rooms, wrestling practice room, football coaches meeting rooms and renovation of the football athletic dorm. A complete maintenance and irrigation system has also been implemented for all practice fields.

Renovations recently concluded include the new IPTAY/ticket complex at Gate 9 at the football stadium, a nine-lane all-weather track, Jervy Center offices and gymnasium. Without a doubt, Clemson athletic facilities are among the finest in the country.

Administratively, Robinson has instituted policies and procedures that benefit all constituents. Among the changes are the drug testing program, the Student Athlete Assistance Program (SAAP), a staff Policies and Procedures Manual, computerization of the department, the pro agents seminar, as well as the athletic academic scholarship endowment.

From a university prospective, Robinson envisions the athletic department as being one of 49 campus departments, serving a viable role to the mission of Clemson University. "Athletic competition provides a common bond for students, faculty, staff, and friends," according to Robinson.

Under the direction of Robinson, the athletic department continues to support the university. Over $1 million have been contributed to the athletic academic scholarship fund; and band travel equipment and uniforms are funded by athletic dollars. An educational enhancement fund has been coordinated through the efforts of the athletic department and the Athletic Council.

With Robinson's qualifications, it is easy to see why the Clemson athletic program enjoys continued success — he has done it all. He has been an administrator at all levels, he has worked in other areas of the university. Robinson has been a head coach and he has handled the budgetary aspects needed to run a $12 million program.

Robinson graduated from Furman with a B.S. degree in business and political science in 1968. He was the president of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity chapter at Furman.

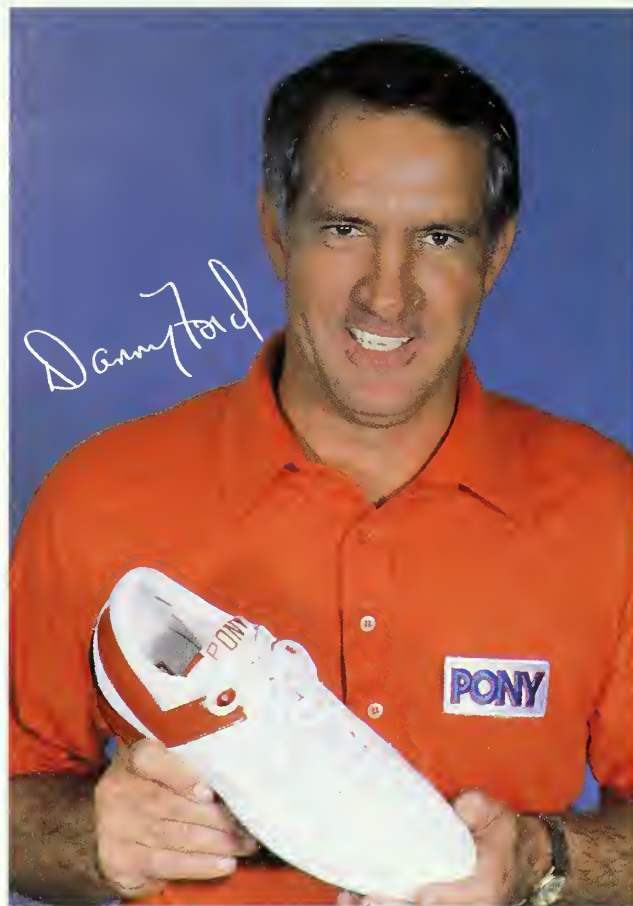

Robinson came to Clemson in 1970, not in athletics, but in the housing office. After three years, he moved across campus to serve as an administrative assistant in the athletic department.

After serving the athletic department in various capacities, he became business manager in 1975. Two years later he was named assistant athletic director, and in 1980 he became associate AD. He held that title for five years, and his area of responsibility moved to primarily football and basketball. The native of Columbia became Athletic Director in March of 1985.

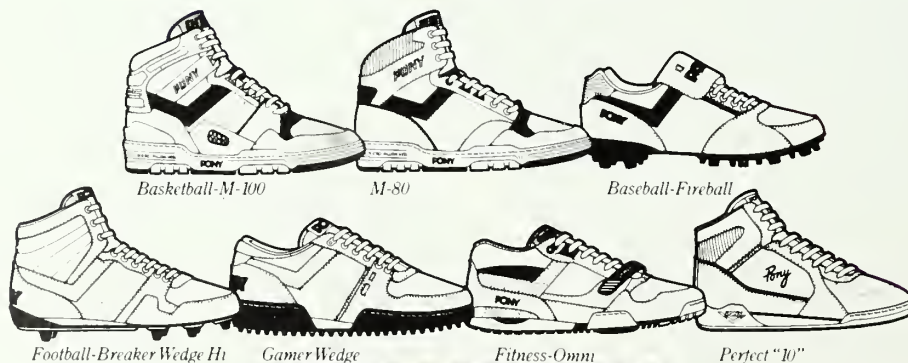

While serving his administrative duties, Robinson found time to coach the Clemson golf team between 1975 and 1983. During his time as the head coach, Clemson won its first ACC title in golf and three times the Tigers participated in the NCAA tournament. In 1983, his final season as the head coach, he guided Clemson to a number-five finish. Robinson is a member of the NCAA golf committee and is a member of the CFA Board of Directors.

The list of winningest active coaches in college football contains only the very best from the world of coaching. Last year, a new name appeared in the top five of that elite list. Clemson's Danny Ford has moved into fourth place on the list of winningest active coaches in the college ranks on a percentage basis.

Not only has Ford become one of the top coaches in the nation, but on the way to this accomplishment, he has defeated each of the top three as listed at the conclusion of the 1988 season. In only 10 full seasons, Ford has posted wins over Nebraska's Tom Osborne, Penn State's Joe Paterno, and former Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer, the fourth winningest coach in the history of college football. The wins over Paterno and Switzer came after two of the winningest seasons in Clemson history, as the Tigers went 10-2 in 1987 and 1988. The win over Osborne's Nebraska team came on the heels of the only 12-0 season and national championship in the history of Clemson football.

Last year's Citrus Bowl victory over Oklahoma marked Ford's seventh bowl trip in only 10 full years as head coach and his fifth bowl victory in those seven trips. All 10 years as head coach, his teams have had winning regular season records. Clemson has won 80 percent of its games over the last three years and has been in the top 20 for 34 straight polls. Ford has already tied former Clemson coach Frank Howard for the ACC record for sole championships with five and for most top 20 seasons by a Clemson coach with six.

Ford's winning tradition did not begin when he became a head coach, it has followed through his entire affiliation with the game of football. Overall, he has been involved with 21 winning regular seasons in his 22 years of football, and his teams have won over 75 percent of the time.

His success as a head coach is not only evident in his win-loss record, but also in a long list of accomplishments Ford has compiled in his first 10 years as a head coach. This list would be impressive with anyone's name on it, but considering the fact that Ford is only 41, it is phenomenal. His most significant accomplishment, winning the 1981 National Championship, was attained when he was only 33-years-old, making him the youngest coach in the history of the college game to win the Associated Press National Championship.

Not only has Ford moved into fourth place on the list of winningest active coaches, but he has recently reached another milestone. He is now the winningest coach in the history of the Atlantic Coast Conference on a percentage basis. He is already second in total wins among ACC coaches and needs just 13 wins to break Clemson Hall of Famer Frank Howard's record. These wins have not been easy ones, instead they have come against fierce competition. Ford has already gained more wins over AP top 20 and top 10 teams than any other coach in Clemson history and is the only coach in conference history to have a winning record (15-11-1) versus top 20 teams (top 20 when playing Clemson, minimum 10 games played).

Ford has established a new era in football at Clemson University, creating one of the most solid programs in the nation. Now in his 11th full season with the Tigers, his record stood at 86-27-4 (.752) entering the season. Not only is Ford among the winningest active coaches, but Clemson also has the second best winning percentage in the South during this time period. Clemson is the only team in the nation to win a bowl game, a conference championship and finish in the top 20 of the AP poll each of the last three years. Clemson has the sixth best record (28-6-2) in the nation during this time period.

After examining Ford's football past, it is difficult to imagine him anything but a winner. Ford played tight end and offensive tackle for Paul "Bear" Bryant at Alabama between 1967 and 1969. Ford started all three years, was all-conference in 1969 and played on all three teams that went to bowl games. In 1969 he was a member of the All-SEC academic team, and served as captain of the Alabama squad. Ford also played freshman basketball at Alabama.

Ford earned a B.S. degree in industrial arts and a Master's Degree in special education from Alabama, working as a graduate assistant coach for Bryant and then as a full-time assistant in 1972 and 1973. From 1974 to 1976 he served as an assistant coach at Virginia Tech and joined the Clemson coaching staff in 1977 as an offensive line coach. He was named assistant head coach prior to the 1978 season. At the end of that season at the age of 30, Ford was named the Tigers' head coach, making him the youngest active Division I coach in the country.

Clemson's head coach has had five bowl wins, five ACC titles and six Top 20 seasons.

Danny Lee Ford was born on April 2, 1948 in Gadsden, AL and married Deborah Anderson of Attalla, AL on January 23, 1970. The couple has four children: Jennifer Renee (3/15/73); Ashleigh Lynn (8/13/75); Mary Elizabeth (4/24/81); and Daniel Lee (10/17/85).

He began coaching on the collegiate level at East Tennessee State (1973-77), then moved on to Wichita State (1978) and Tulsa (1979). He also spent three years at Mississippi (1980-82) before taking a position at Duke, where he spent two years (1983-84). Clemson Coaches Clemson's 1988-89 sports program was ranked in the top 10 in the nation for the second consecutive year and the seventh time in the last 11 years as the Tiger program compiled 61 points in the USA Today national sports poll released last July. Clemson's football team had a lot to do with that figure with its number-nine final AP ranking, but eight other sports at Clemson also ranked in the top 20 last season.

Clemson was one of just eight teams in the nation to play in a bowl game, the NCAA basketball tournament and the NCAA baseball tournament for the 1988-89 academic year and was one of only three schools to gain at least one win in each postseason event. Clemson tied the ACC record for overall conference championships last year with seven. The Clemson football, baseball, men's outdoor track, men's Indoor Track, men's cross country, men's tennis and women's swimming teams all won ACC titles. The Tigers boasted 65 first-team All-ACC players last year, a new school record, and tied the Clemson record for All-Americans with 26. Clemson also had nine top 20 teams last year, one off the school record of 10.

ACC Coach-of-the-Year honors went to Bob Pollock (men's cross country, men's indoor track, men's outdoor track), Wayne Coffman (women's indoor track), Chuck Kriese (men's tennis), and Bob Boettner (women's swimming).

Clemson Memorial Stadium

Just before Jess Neely left for Rice University, he gave Clemson a message. "Don't ever let them talk you into building a big stadium," he said. "Put about 10,000 seats behind the Y.M.C.A. That's all you'll ever need."

Instead of following Coach Neely's advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing — there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work: clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally, on September 19, 1942, Clemson Memorial Stadium opened with the Tiger football team thrashing Presbyterian College, 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow; and grow and grow.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40's, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron moved on to be a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed without a few problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young football player proudly announced he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, however, the boy was swollen twice his size and had to be put in the hospital.

There are many other stories about the building of the stadium including one stating that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner of the stadium as the concrete was being poured. The story claims the tobacco is still there.

Howard says that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid the sod on the field," he says. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through. I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more weeks' pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through.

"After that it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard says that on the day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 and we played at 2:00." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and, in 1960, a total of 5,658 West end zone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large end zone "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to about 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of the stadium as crowds swelled — the first one in 1978 and the second in 1983. This increased capacity to approximately 80,000 which makes it one of the 10 largest on-campus stadiums in the country.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original part of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or $6.25 a seat. The newest upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $866 a seat.

Through the years Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian coach, Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his

P.C. teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillan said the place was like Death Valley. A few years later, the name stuck.

On November 16, 1974 the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

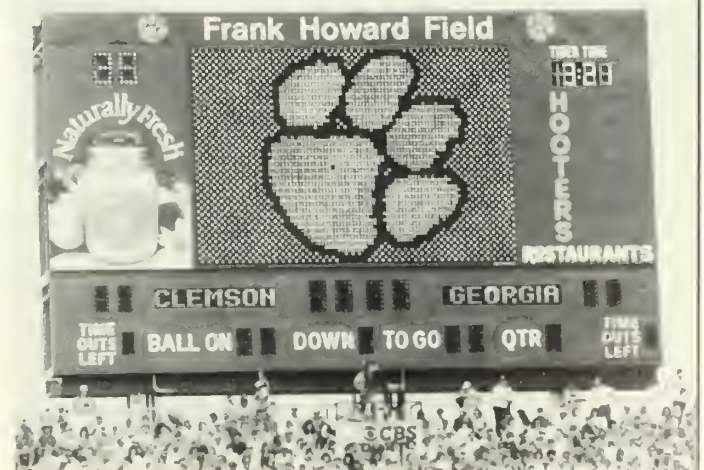

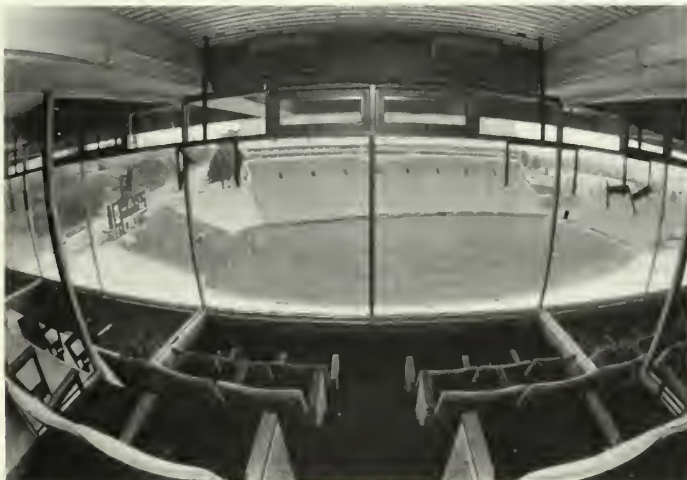

Athletic Director Bobby Robinson says that Memorial Stadium has many features which make it a top facility. "One thing that makes it so good is the number of sideline seats," he says. "We don't think there is a bad seat in the house.

"We also have outstanding dressing rooms, press facilities, and ample parking nearby. A unique feature of the stadium is the number of private boxes."

Rick Brewer, an official in the University athletic ticket office says that despite the stadium's large size, there are still season ticket problems. "When the second upper deck was built, we thought it would take care of everything," he said. "To our dismay, it hasn't. We've filled the upper decks and have moved season ticket holders into the end zone, which are not permanent seats."

Despite the apparent ticket crunch, Robinson says there are no immediate plans to further expand the stadium. "Before we expand we'll have to show over an extended length of time — like five to seven years — that we can sell out what we have now," he said. "We don't want supply to greatly exceed demand. Even though it's hard to get tickets now, we still get people in our stadium. The ticket means more if it's harder to get."

But, if Memorial Stadium is expanded again and capacity is pushed close to 100,000, there will be room for the construction over the west stands, enclosing that end like a horseshoe.

Clemson Memorial Stadium has over 100 luxury boxes, more than any other on-campus facility in the nation. Clemson's message board keeps fans up to date with other scores and stats, and also projects player's pictures after an outstanding play.

The atmosphere in the postgame interview area under the West stands of Clemson Memorial Stadium is always chaotic. Writers, television sports anchors and radio reporters are frantically looking for star players to voice their impressions of the most recent Clemson victory.

Terry Allen is in one corner, Chris Morocco in the other. A still soaked with sweat Levon Kirkland is holding court somewhere in the middle. Despite the presence of these well-known star players, the media is not satisfied. In the wake of Clemson's 31-7 win over Maryland, two other players are needed by the media to truly tell the story of Clemson's ninth straight win.

"Which one is Mitch Belton? Where is Rob Bodine," query the media representatives. On this day Belton and Bodine have had a significant impact on Clemson's victory. Belton tied a single game record with two blocked punts, something that had not been done in 35 years, and Bodine had eight tackles and his first career sack.

The attention for this defensive duo is an unusual occurrence in this day and age of college football because both are walk-ons.

"Walk-ons have made a big difference for us this year," said Clyde Wrenn, assistant athletic director for football operations. "Guys like Bodine and Belton this year, and Ricardo Hooper, David Treadwell and A.J. Johnson in the last few years have made an impact."

"You must have a lot of inner motivation, a desire to prove something to yourself," said Belton. "I was injured most of my senior year of high school and was not recruited by many schools. I sat in the stands with the other students my first year (1986), but I always wanted to prove something to myself, so I walked on in the spring."

Belton, like most walk-ons, is a fascinating story. During his senior year the Columbia, SC, native ironically was on his way to a South Carolina game in Williams-Brice Stadium. He had automobile problems in transit, and when he loosened the radiator cap to calm a hot engine, his arm was severely burned and his senior year was cut short.

Although Belton received some interest from some smaller schools for his athletic ability, Clemson offered him a partial academic scholarship for his academic prowess and, as a result, he came to Clemson. Since the Spring of 1986 he has been a leader of Danny Ford's special teams.

"It was a great feeling of satisfaction to get into the 1987 Western Carolina game (his first at Clemson). I had not played a football game since October of 1985. I was just so excited to be out on the field.

"A walk-on has to work a little harder to earn everyone's respect. But, the experience has taught me perseverance and I will take that with me when I leave here."

Another current Tiger who has learned the importance of perseverance is starting middle guard Rob Bodine. He has shown his perseverance in his ability to adapt to learning new positions. The walk-on has found a home at the axis of the front line of defense, middle guard.

"I came here hoping to play linebacker, moved to fullback during last fall and moved to the defensive line last spring. I told coach Ford I just wanted to play a position where I had a chance to help the team."

Ford made the right move, as Bodine has started at middle guard in every game and has been a leader of a Clemson defense that ranks in the top 20 in the nation in total defense and scoring defense. "Bodine has really made a big contribution this year," said Ford. "He is a lot lighter than most middle guards (235 pounds), but somehow he gets the job done."

Getting the job done with quickness and smarts is the trademark of the walk-on, who often must find other means of making up for a relative deficiency in natural talent. "I have to keep low and use my hands correctly," said Bodine. "I have to be a technique player to be successful because most of the centers I go against are bigger than I am."

Bodine has seen both sides of the scholarship scene. He began his college career at North Dakota as a scholarship linebacker. He started as a linebacker in 1987. Due to family reasons, he moved to the Pickens area in the summer of 1988 and enrolled at Clemson in summer school.

Bodine had spent some of his formative years in Pickens and had become a Clemson fan. He followed the Tigers via television when he lived in North Dakota.

"I enrolled in summer school and met some of the football players. I had known Ty Granger in high school so I began to meet more and more players. I decided that I missed Southern football, so I decided to transfer to Clemson and attempt to make it as a walk-on."

This desire to prove something as a walk-on has given Danny Ford some of his best team leaders over the years. More often than not, the walk-on who makes it as a first-team player earns the respect of the rest of the team.

In 1978 and 1977, Clemson was blessed with the defensive abilities of cornerback Steve Ryan, a walk-on who earned All-ACC honors on two occasions.

Jack Cain was a starter at safety in 1979 who won the ACC's Brian Piccolo Award. Reggie Pleasant was a two-year starter for the Tigers in the secondary who was an All-Canadian Football League performer a couple of years ago.

And, we certainly should not forget David Treadwell, one of the finest student-athlete representatives Clemson has had in the last decade. He was a three-time academic All-ACC player, first-team All-American and now is one of the leading kick-scorers in the NFL with the Denver Broncos. Treadwell came to Clemson strictly for its engineering reputation. He had not even played high school football. Has a walk-on ever taken his opportunity any further than Treadwell?

Eleven walk-ons have appeared in games so far for the Tigers this year. Whether it be a Mitch Belton punt block, or a Rob Bodine sack, the walk-ons are a valuable group of men on Danny Ford's Tigers. They just might be the difference in a championship season.

Just ask the media.

Mitch Belton has already set a single season mark for blocked punts.

We're Team Players.

Wherever Chem-Nuclear does business, our first priority is the safe management of low-level radioactive waste. But we also take pride in being good corporate citizens—home team players.

In Barnwell, S.C., our current southeastern location, we make a real contribution. We provide scholarships and equipment and support special programs in the county schools. We support state-wide programs for exceptional students. And youth recreation is as important to us as our donations to the arts.

We helped fund a drug testing program for the sheriff's office, and set aside land for a fire station. We bought camera equipment for the police department, and put new lights on their patrol cars.

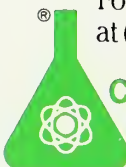

We are coaches, tutors, and volunteer firemen. We're active with organizations from the United Way to the National Guard, from churches and environmental groups to the Chamber of Commerce.

We're proud of our community and our contributions. While our first responsibility is to protect our neighbors and the environment by safely disposing of low-level radioactive waste, we take to heart our obligation to help build a strong, prosperous community—to be good citizens.

In Barnwell, when people talk about the home team, they're talking about us.

Clemson in AP Poll 41 Straight Weeks

Clemson has been ranked in the Associated Press poll 41 consecutive weeks, including this week's October 10th poll. The last time Clemson was not ranked was in the poll in November 24, 1986 after a tie with South Carolina. But, Clemson beat Stanford in the 1986 Gator Bowl and jumped back into the final Top 20.

Clemson was ranked ninth in the final poll of last year and 12th in the preseason poll this season. The Tigers moved into the top 10 after beating Furman and to number-seven with the victory over Florida State. The September 26 poll marked the fourth straight week Clemson was in the top 10. Clemson was in the top 10 for the first four polls of 1988 and in the top 10 for the first eight polls of 1987.

Out of the 41 straight polls Clemson has been ranked, its highest rating has been a number-three ranking on September 6 and September 12 of 1988. Clemson has been in the top 10 in 21 of those 41 polls. Clemson has finished in the top 20 three straight years, won three straight bowl games and three straight ACC titles. Clemson is the only school in the country who can claim a conference title, bowl win and final AP Top 20 ranking three straight years.

Walker Played For Three Schools

During the war years there are some fascinating stories about players who participated for many different schools and who spread their eligibility out over a period of many years.

Henry Walker was such an athlete. Now a textile executive, Walker is a 1948 Clemson graduate. He enlisted in the Navy out of high school and was sent to South Carolina for eight months. He played one year of football for the Gamecocks then transferred to the Navy ROTC Program at Virginia, where he played football, baseball and tennis. He earned All-America football honors for the Wahoos in 1944 as a wide receiver.

He completed his military duties in 1946 and entered Clemson. He played football for the Tigers in 1946 and 1947 and once had 10 receptions in a game against Auburn, still the second highest reception game in Clemson history. He also holds the distinction of playing on the winning side for both Clemson and South Carolina in a "Big Thursday" game.

Walker went on to win the Norris Medal in 1948, which is given to the most outstanding Clemson student in the University's graduating class. Today, he is the president of Dundee Mills, Inc., which makes towels for, among other institutions, the Ritz Carlton and Plaza Hotels of New York City and Disney World.

Clemson's NFL Record Holders

Four former Tigers hold franchise records on an individual game, season or career basis. One is still active and three are retired.

Two former Tigers hold records in Pittsburgh Steeler history, Bobby Gage and Ray Mathews. Gage is the career punt return leader in Steeler history with a 14.9 average. He played for the Steelers between 1949 and 1950. Mathews co-holds the Steeler records for single game touchdowns scored (four) and points scored (24).

Donald Igwebuike holds more team records than any other Tiger, past or present. The current Tampa Bay Buccaneer holds the club record for career field goals (72), single season field goals (22), points (96) and single game field goals (four).

Dwight Clark is the final former Tiger to hold an NFL club record. During Clark's 10-year career with the San Francisco 49ers he caught more passes (506) and accumulated more reception yardage (6750) than any other 49er player.

Clark had seven seasons in which he had at least 50 receptions, which is tied for second best in NFL history. Only Steve Largent, with 10 such seasons, has a higher figure. Clark was tied for 19th in NFL history in total receptions entering this year with 506.

Bobby Gage, Jerry Butler and Charlie Waters are the only former Tigers close to any all-time NFL records. Gage had a 97 yard run from scrimmage for Pittsburgh against the Chicago Bears in 1949 and that is still tied for the second longest run in NFL history.

Jerry Butler is still the co-holder of the NFL record for single game reception yardage by a rookie. Butler caught 10 passes for 255 yards and four scores in 1979 for Buffalo against the Jets and it has been equalled only once, by Anthony Allen of the Washington Redskins. Overall, the 255-yard performance is tied for 11th in league history.

Waters holds or is close to holding numerous playoff records. The former Tiger of the late sixties played in 25 career playoff games, third on the all-time list and he is tied for most Super Bowl appearances with five. He also is co-holder (along with Bill Simpson of the LA Rams and Buffalo Bills) of the career playoff interception record with nine. He had three in one game vs. the Bears in 1977. He also is tied for fourth in terms of most opponent fumbles recovered in playoff history with three.

Belton Sets Record, Ties Another

Clemson walk-on defensive back Mitch Belton blocked two punts against Maryland, giving him three blocked punts for the season. He has already become the first Clemson player to block three punts in a season and the second to block two punts in one game. Belton, a native of Columbia, actually blocked two punts in the same quarter of the 31-7 Maryland win.

Wingo Avery blocked two punts against The Citadel in 1954 and that is the only other time an individual has blocked two punts in one game. The single season record for blocked punts was two, held by three players. Chuck Rose blocked two punts in 1980, the only time a Danny Ford coached player had two blocked punts in the same season prior to Belton's heroics. Avery had two in 1954 and Tom Salisbury had a pair for the 1944 club.

Clemson has been ranked in the Top 20 in every AP Poll since Doug Brewster joined the Tigers. Clemson has not been out of the Top 20 since November of 1986.

Freshmen of Influence

By Annabelle Vaughan

A college freshman spends much of his time trying to hide the fact that he is a freshman. Such simple things as how to go through the dinner line, how to check out library books, or even how to find classes without looking lost become major struggles as these rookies try to adjust to college life.

But some freshmen have an even greater adjustment to make when arriving on the Clemson campus. Not only do they have to worry about these minor problems, but they also have to worry about such problems as jumping offsides, missing assignments, and remembering the snap count. And if these freshmen make mistakes, the result is not just looking wet behind the ears, it could make the difference between winning and losing.

On the 1989 Tiger football squad, the contributions of first-year players have been quite positive. Eight true freshmen have seen action for Clemson this season, and five talented rookies have worked their way up to second-team on the depth chart, an accomplishment that few Clemson athletes have been able to boast since red-shirting was instituted in 1982. This season, Rodney Blunt, Eric Geter, Tyrone Gibson, Robert O'Neal, Larry Ryans, Ashley Sheppard, Tyrone Simpson, and James Trapp have all made significant contributions to the fortunes of Clemson football.

Only in 1985 have more true freshmen seen action than this season. That year, 10 first-year freshmen played, and if that class is any indication of the success awaiting 1989's freshmen, Clemson fans are in for a few enjoyable years.

This season, Clemson fans have had a tough time keeping up with all the new names and faces in orange uniforms. When the Tigers took the field for the season opener with Furman, it marked the largest group of true freshmen to ever play in the first game of the season. The most noticeable rookie to see action against the Paladins was 5-10, 188 tailback Rodney Blunt. The absence of Terry Allen forced Blunt into the limelight early in the game, and the diminutive back responded well, working 22 plays from scrimmage and carrying the ball 10 times for 24 yards and grabbing an eight-yard reception. Two games later, Blunt broke the thumb on his right hand, and may not return in 1989.

Another first-time player to see offensive action versus the Paladins was tight end Tyrone Gibson. Gibson came to Clemson as a linebacker and worked out for most of the season at that position. A week before the season started, however, the Clemson coaches needed help at the tight end slot and Gibson agreed to give it a chance. "I wanted to play as a freshman, but I never thought it would be on the offensive side of the ball. I didn't want to get red-shirted this season. I wanted to play very much. I realized that I really wasn't ready to play linebacker yet, so I guess I was lucky that the coaches wanted me to move to tight end."

Gibson's wish for playing time has definitely been granted. He has been in for 71 snaps from scrimmage and has seen 28 special teams plays. He has also been the only true freshman to start a game in 1989, as he got the starting nod in the Duke contest when the Tigers came out in a double tight-end set.

"Tight end has been fun. I get to be in the spotlight a little bit, even though I haven't caught a pass. But I can catch, I'm just waiting for them to throw the ball. Because I was a linebacker, I will probably just be able to run over anybody that tries to get me after I catch the ball," says Gibson with a grin.

Gibson admits that being a freshman on such a talented team is difficult at times. "I guess I've made some freshmen mistakes," he laughs. "The worst was probably when I jumped offsides in the Maryland game. We were supposed to go on first sound and when I heard a sound, I went. It just wasn't our quarterback that made the sound."

The Clemson defense has gotten an even bigger boost from baby Tigers, as four rookies are on the second-team of the Clemson defensive squad. The secondary has been strengthened by the talents of four newcomers.

Defensive back Robert O'Neal has seen the most action among the rookies on this year's squad. After the Duke game, O'Neal had participated in 174 plays from scrimmage and 39 special teams plays. He also has an impressive total of 20 tackles, four passes broken up, and three interceptions to his credit. O'Neal leads the team in interceptions, and his two thefts versus Duke were a first for a Tiger since 1986. The nickel back in the Clemson defensive scheme, O'Neal is pleasantly surprised with the success

O'Neal was 30th in the nation in interceptions through the Duke game and has been in for over 200 snaps.

he has found so early — success that includes an ACC Rookie-of-the-Week honor. "It's been exciting to have the opportunity to play," he says. "It has created a real challenge in my life for me to have the chance to step in and do something to really help this team. But even though I'm glad for the chance to play, I know I can improve. I still haven't settled down and relaxed out there on the field and just play football."

"That is probably the toughest part about being a freshman. I am usually tense when the game begins and as the game progresses, I can relax and just play my game. I know that with more experience, I will be able to relax more. A freshman probably has to worry about mistakes more than the other guys. It is vital that a freshman perform well or he won't get the chance to play."

O'Neal's roommate and best friend, Eric Geter, has also found a home in the Clemson defensive secondary. The tandem took several recruiting trips together and decided they would come to the same school. Luckily for Clemson football followers, they both chose Clemson. Geter is listed as a second-team cornerback and has eight stops to his credit this season. He also picked off a pass in the Virginia Tech contest, returning it 30 yards.

Two other defensive backs, James Trapp and Larry Ryans have also added depth to the Tiger secondary this season. Both have seen action mostly on the special teams, with Trapp, a Lawton, OK native, participating in 48 snaps through the Duke game. The 6-0, 178-pound Ryans had played on special teams for 35 plays from scrimmage as of October 6. The two backs, who will add their speed to the Tiger track team next spring, have combined for six tackles this season.

Defensive tackle Tyrone Simpson and outside linebacker Ashley Sheppard are now roommates and teammates for the second year, as both played football at Fork Union Military Prep School last season. Both have also moved up to second team slots at their respective positions. Simpson, says the newcomers have given the Clemson team depth. "When we came in this summer, we all knew that the team was going to have to develop depth," he remembers. "That is one of the most important aspects of a good football team and I think we have helped solve the depth problem. We all have to improve a whole lot, but we already have made strides."

Ashley Sheppard had four tackles, a quarterback pressure and a pass broken up to his credit prior to the Virginia game. To the 6-3, 235-pound Sheppard, being a freshman is not something that sets him and his fellow freshmen apart from his other teammates.

"At this point in the season, we are all in it together," says Sheppard. "There is no such thing as a freshman mistake any more. A mistake is a mistake and a football player is a football player. It doesn't really make a difference whether you are a freshman or a senior. You either do your job well or you don't. Being a freshman can't be an excuse anymore."

For the rookies of 1989, being a freshman is something to be proud of, not something they need to try to conceal. After six games, months of practice and maybe even a few freshman mistakes, Clemson's newcomers are no longer just freshmen, they are definitely Tigers.

Rodney Fletcher

By Mickey Plyler

"You are only as good as your last game."

These are words Clemson's Rodney Fletcher lives by everyday. The senior wide receiver, who is also a converted quarterback, "improves every time he steps on the field," according to Clemson wide receiver coach of seven years, Woody McCorvey.

"Last year was a learning experience for him because he had never played wide receiver before. But he always tried hard and hustled everyday. It is amazing how fast he caught on to the things that you have to do at receiver."

Just how much has he caught on? Through five games, Fletcher led the team in receiving yards with 168 and was tied for the team lead in receptions with eight.

Fletcher, a native of Barnsville, GA, came to Clemson via Taft Junior College in California. There he played quarterback and led Taft to a number-two ranking in the California JUCO system. Fletcher then decided to follow former Taft teammate Jesse Hatcher to Clemson in January of 1988. Because of his quickness and overall athletic ability, he was moved to wide receiver before the Spring Game in 1988 and has been improving ever since.

"I went out to Taft because I wanted to play basketball and football," says Fletcher. "Most schools wanted me to go to junior college first to prove that I could play both sports on that level. I truly believe the experience I gained in California has been very valuable to me. It taught me to survive on my own. It was tough being without my family, but that was something I was going to eventually have to do anyway. The overall experience helped me mature greatly."

"The transformation from the West coast and junior college to the East coast and major college was a big step for me," Fletcher added. "I really wanted to get back home because my heart will always be in the South."

"But the transformation to wide receiver was not as smooth at first. I was like a five-year-old kid lost in a big city. I did not have a clue as to what I was doing out there. The only thing I knew about wide receivers was what I had seen on television and that was very little."

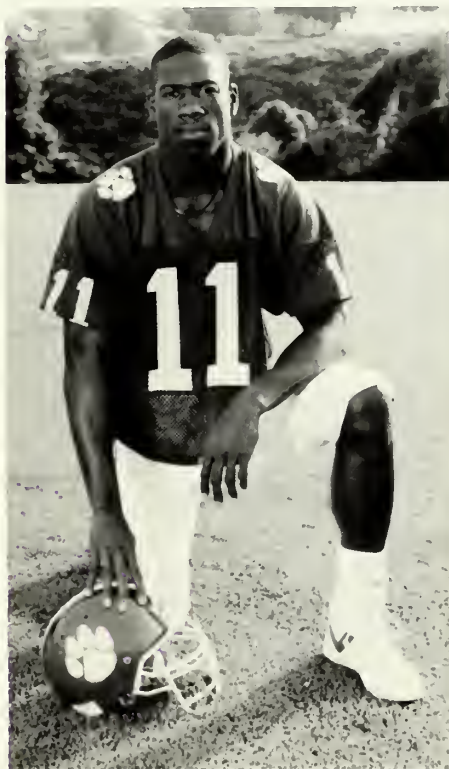

"But, I realized I better learn very fast because it was obvious that I could contribute to a winning team. There is no "I" in the word Clemson and receiver was where they needed me most. I will do anything and sacrifice everything to win."

Not only has Fletcher helped Clemson's passing game, his blocking has sprung some very big runs for Clemson's running backs, including Terry Allen's 73-yard touchdown run against Florida State. "The toughest thing you have to do at wide receiver is block," says McCorvey. "To be a good blocker at the corner, you can possess all of the athletic ability in the world, but you will not be a good blocker unless you have the desire that it takes. That is a big plus with Rodney when he needs to block."

In this, his senior season, Fletcher is posting some outstanding numbers, including a team-leading average of 21 yards a reception. "Those statistics are fine but a conference championship and another bowl game are the most important things to me," says Fletcher. "I still understand that if Clemson is going to be successful, I have to block well on the corners. That was a huge change for me. At quarterback, you always would try to avoid getting hit. Now I try to hit somebody on 80 percent of the plays."

Fletcher says it is his "Four D's" that helped him through the transition period.

Fletcher was a junior college quarterback who has shown his all-around abilities as a wide receiver.

"The transformation from the West coast and junior college to the East coast and major college was a big step for me," Fletcher added. "I really wanted to get back home because my heart will always be in the South."

"My work ethics come from my 'Four D's', dedication, discipline, desire, and determination. These things were stressed to me by my big brother, Louis, when I was growing up and I have kept that with me all of my life."

Fletcher's biggest game to date came at the hands of Florida State this season where he caught four passes for 92 yards in the Tigers' win over the Seminoles. But coaches and players alike insist his contributions go much deeper than great performances on Saturday. "Rodney is a good senior leader because he sets a great example for our younger players," McCorvey adds. "He is a real hustler every day on the practice field. He has some of the best work habits of anyone I have ever had."

The only personal goal Fletcher has set is in the classroom. "I have never set personal goals on the athletic field, mainly because I have never enjoyed individual sports. But, the classroom is a different story. School is one of the few individual activities in which I participate. This is the only place where I have set personal goals," Fletcher says. The obvious goal of graduation is very near to Fletcher.

Wesley McFadden, Fletcher's roommate and close friend, perhaps sums up Rodney Fletcher best when he says, "Fletcher is Fletcher. He is consistent in everything he does. Whether it be on the practice field, in the game, or at night when he just won't shut up and let me sleep."

Coach Danny Ford said, "Back in the spring, we named him our most improved receiver. He is very consistent and improves every day. These are the things it takes to be a real fine leader."

Fletcher would like to pass on something to all young athletes, "Work hard and hustle every play and you will improve, because you are only as good as your last game."

Emergency Services

By Christine Kelly
Genetech, Inc.

The Clemson University Athletic Department provides the following for your safety and emergency medical needs:

1. Advanced cardiac life-support stations in four locations (North stands, Upper North deck, South stands, Upper South deck). These units are staffed with skill-care nurses, physicians, cardiologists, internists, paramedics, and EMTs.
2. Mobile units of EMTs and paramedics are strategically located throughout the entire stadium.
3. Ambulances with life-support equipment are available in North stand and South stand areas and have prearranged routes for evacuation to local hospitals.

Learn to recognize these personnel and facilities.

WHAT TO DO IF EMERGENCIES ARISE

Please step back and give the organized stadium EMS personnel room to work. Well-intentioned attempts to help by untrained persons interfere with the efficiency of the EMS system. If you have basic or advanced training in specific life-support methods, make your qualifications known and offer your help. Untrained personnel can be frequently more harmful than helpful.

Most emergencies occurring at the stadium result from pre-existing medical conditions. Bring your medical identification card or wear medical identification jewelry. Moderation is the key with dress, food, beverage intake and physical exertion. Our two more frequent serious medical problems at football games are allergic reactions to insect stings and heart attacks.

INSECT STINGS: Common at outdoor events. Treat immediately with ice. Seek medical advice. If allergic, carry a kit from your physician with you.

HOW TO RECOGNIZE A HEART ATTACK: The symptoms of a heart attack vary, but the usual warning signs are:

1. Uncomfortable pressure, fullness, squeezing or pain in the center of your chest lasting for two minutes or more.

2. Pain spreading to the shoulders, neck, jaw, arms, or back.
3. Dizziness, fainting, sweating, nausea and/or shortness of breath.

Expect a Denial

Frequently heart attack victims deny they're having a heart attack. The event is frightening or they don't want the embarrassment of a false alarm. Therefore, they delay getting help by ignoring their symptoms or rationalizing, "it's just indigestion."

Find out what's really wrong. Prompt response can dramatically increase chances of survival and recovery.

New therapies have been developed that can minimize heart damage and save lives if treatment begins within the first few hours of symptom onset. "Time is muscle." Get help or get to a hospital immediately.

GREAT TEAMS BEGIN WITH THEIR LINEMEN

Like the game of football, the success of any team depends greatly on its unsung heroes, the many people who pull together as one to get the job done.

At SCE&G, the name of our game is customer service. And our success depends on this same kind of teamwork.

Our team has a lot of unsung heroes. They're our linemen, gasmen, meter readers, engineers, and power plant operators. They're also the inspectors, computer experts, accountants and customer service representatives who work to serve you. In fact, they're everyone you depend on to be knowledgeable and safety conscious, to respond quickly and to give you the kind of quality service you've come to expect from the people at SCE&G.

Academic Learning Center

By Annabelle Vaughan

Although a Tiger student-athlete spends a great deal of time in practice or in competition, athletics is only a small portion of his life at Clemson University. Like any student, Tiger athletes have to concentrate on their performance in the classroom in order to reach their academic goals, just as they train to fulfill their athletic goals.

To respond to these needs, Clemson University employs a dedicated athletic-academic advising staff that has continuously improved the role of academics in an athlete's life at Clemson over the past 10 years. This staff is made up of four full-time employees and two graduate assistants who are in charge of coordinating the curriculum of Clemson's athletes. The program operates within the academic structure of the university and with the deans of each college. The office is not a part of the athletic department, even though it is funded by IPTAY. Instead, it operates under the Dean of Admissions and Registration.

Each athlete's relationship with the athletic-academic advising staff begins when he visits Clemson as a recruit. A member of the staff meets with the recruit and explains the program. If a recruit knows what curriculum he plans to pursue, a faculty member from that college meets with and counsels him on his choice. If a recruit is undecided about a choice of major, the academic advising staff meets with him and helps him decide which of the courses available at Clemson will best suit his needs.

Once a recruit becomes a student-athlete at Clemson, he enters a continuous tutoring and advising program that does not end until he walks across the stage with his diploma. The advising staff aids in registration and arranging block schedules for athletes to help them accommodate their busy schedules. This program also involves a required study hall for all first-year freshmen and for all other student-athletes with less than a 2.0 cumulative grade-point average.

Study Hall is held five nights a week for two hours each night during the spring and fall semester and both summer sessions. Any Clemson athlete, trainer, manager and even cheerleaders are eligible to use the tutoring services, not only freshmen and those under an academic border. More than 80 tutors are employed by the athletic-academic advising staff, and usually 50 or more are available to aid athletes each night. Tutors are generally graduate students or local teachers, who tutor in a field they are pursuing as a career or for a post-graduate degree. During the fall and spring semesters, 200 or more athletes seek tutorial help each night.

The advising program has grown by leaps and bounds during the eighties and is definitely on its way to becoming one of the premier programs in the nation. Joe White, the program's advisor for football, came to Clemson in January of 1981 from Virginia Tech, where he had served as academic advisor and recruiting coordinator. When White began, the staff was made up of himself and a part-time assistant and they were housed in two offices in Mauldin Hall, the football dormitory.

"When I first arrived at Clemson, study hall was meeting all over the campus," White remembers. "The first thing I did was integrate all of the study halls into one building. I met with Louis Henry from the English Department and he agreed to let us use Daniel Hall for our nightly study hall."

ACADEMIC LEARNING CENTER
CLEMSON UNIVERSITY

Clemson spent over $200,000 on its tutoring program in 1989. Athletes have a structured academic schedule.

Ian Davidson joined the program in the early eighties and now supervises the academic progress of athletes in Clemson's other 17 sports. Because of the number of players, walk-on and scholarship athletes, on Clemson's football roster, White and two graduate assistants devote their time solely to football. Former women's basketball coach Annie Tribble and former cross country runner Laurie Haughey have also joined the staff in full-time positions. Tribble's area of emphasis is with the men's and women's basketball programs.

"Clemson University and the athletic department have provided the Clemson student-athlete with the very best of academic support," says White. "We are constantly working to improve graduation rates and to promote interest in academics. We feel that we offer one of the very best athletic/academic advising programs in the nation."

This work has paid off as Clemson has had 13 selections to the Academic All-ACC football team in the last four years. Three members of the 1988 football squad were so honored, Mark Drag, Ty Granger and Stacy Fields. Drag was the third Tiger gridder in the decade of the eighties to be named to both the athletic and academic all-conference teams, following in the footsteps of Mike Eppley and David Treadwell. Drag graduated in May with a

B.S. in industrial education and earned a 3.44 grade point ratio for his final year at Clemson.

Granger, an offensive tackle, was named to the team for three consecutive years, the first time a Clemson athlete has done that in the eighties. Granger, who graduated in May with a B.S. in accounting, earned a 3.22 cumulative GPR for his Clemson career. Sophomore tight end Stacy Fields also was named to the squad for the first time, giving him an opportunity to follow in Granger's footsteps.

But improvements in Clemson's athletic-academic advising staff will continue well into the nineties. "As the university has grown, it has been harder and harder for us to find empty classrooms to use at night for tutoring," says White. "This problem and the emphasis we at Clemson place on academics has created the need for an athletic-academic advising facility."

Preconstruction has already begun on a facility that may turn out to be the largest of its kind in the nation. Ground is scheduled to be broken in October on the program's new facility, a two-story structure with 29,000 square feet of room devoted entirely to the athletic-academic advising program. The building will be located on east campus, across from Schilletter Dining Hall and within a stone's throw of the football dormitory. It is scheduled to be completed and ready for use for the 1990 fall semester.

The $2.5 million facility will house an auditorium large enough to seat 176 people. This auditorium will be used for guest speakers and perhaps for football squad meetings, as it will be large enough to seat the entire football team and coaching staff. It will be available for use by any department in the university when it is not being used by the athletic-academic staff. The building will also contain a reception area, offices for the staff, a conference room, 10 monitored study hall rooms and one larger room for football study hall. Twenty-five tutoring rooms to be used by all sports will make up the second floor of the building.

Two large computer rooms will also be available in the new facility, one will contain basic word processors for athletes to use in typing papers and for pre-registration. The other computer room will be for activities required for computer science, engineering, management, or any other courses requiring computer work. Space will also be available to athletes who need a quiet place to study during the day.

"Many universities have added athletic advising facilities onto their existing athletic facilities," says White, "but to my knowledge, our's will be the only free-standing building of its kind. It will definitely be the largest and we hope it will be the best!"

As Clemson's football program continues to get better and better on the field, Joe White and his staff will continue to strive for improvement in the classroom. With a professional well-qualified athletic-academic advising staff, one of the best facilities in the nation, and an outstanding group of student-athletes, the nineties promise to be even better than the eighties for the overall Clemson football program.

ALMA MATER

Where the Blue Ridge yawns its greatness
Where the Tigers play
Here the sons of dear old Clemson,
Reign Supreme away.

Chorus

Dear old Clemson, we will triumph
And with all our might
That the Tigers' roar may echo
O'er the mountain height.

D E L I C I O U S

Last year, ARA served thousands of meals to people away from home. College students, hospital staffs, industrial personnel. Why, right here in Clemson, ARA serves over 15,000 breakfasts, lunches and dinners to students, parents and faculty daily.

But you may not know our full story. ARA chooses only the freshest and most wholesome ingredients. Bright, crisp vegetables. Ripe, firm fruits. The choicest meats and dairy products. Ingredients that are chopped, steamed, broiled, baked and blended into luscious menus. For banquets or birthdays. Cocktail parties or tailgate feasts. In your home or in one of our private dining rooms in the Clemson House. No matter what your special occasion, ARA can fill the bill of fare.

So the next time your calendar is marked with a red letter day... call ARA for that special service.

We'll cater to your every need.

Clemson University Commemorative Bowl Pins

Each set is individually numbered

Limited to 15,000 sets

Released for the first time in March 1989, this historic set of pins is the first to commemorate Clemson University participation in major collegiate bowl competition, beginning with the 1940 Cotton Bowl played January 1, 1940 in Dallas, Texas.

Each pin displays that year's distinctive Bowl Logo and the helmets of the Tigers and their opponent, with the points scored under each team's helmet. Each pin has a hanging drop piece that proclaims the name and emblem of the Bowl Champion.

With the assistance of Bob Bradley, Clemson Sports Information Director and his staff, the archives at Clemson University were researched for near forgotten authentic artwork from the fifteen bowls the Tigers participated in. As you look at your pin set, notice the helmets in the 1940 Cotton Bowl were brown leather with no face mask, also notice the absence of the now familiar "Tiger Paw." The Tigers first bowl appearance using the "New Plastic Helmets" was the 1949 Gator Bowl. The face mask made its first Clemson Bowl appearance in the 1957 Orange Bowl and the now famous "Tiger Paw" made its bowl debut in the 1977 Gator Bowl. The results of the research are designs for each pin that pull together and preserve the historic past of Clemson Football.

This Commemorative Clemson University Pin Collection is limited to 15,000 sets. Each set is numbered, with the production of the 15,000th set the molds will be destroyed, thus assuring the purchaser that this commemorative pin set is truly a collectors piece that will appreciate in value year after year.

To ensure that pins for future bowls will be available, Sports Mint, Inc. will produce a commemorative pin for all future bowls the Clemson Tiger Football Team participates in. The pin will be available to set owners 60 days after the completion of the bowl.

To Order: Place your order by mail using the order form below or call 704/827-4211. Visa and MasterCard accepted. Place orders by November 1 to assure Christmas delivery.

One of the most unique approaches to remembering Clemson's bowl games that I've seen in my 80 years.

Owning one of these should be a must to every Tiger fan.

— Coach Frank Howard

This is one of the classiest remembrances of Clemson's bowl history ever assembled. The workmanship and thought put into these 15 post-season games is authentic in every detail.

— Bob Bradley

Sports Information Director

No one's tiger den will be complete without one of these plaques showing all of the Clemson Bowl games. It will be a conversation piece for years to come.

— Coach Danny Ford

(Set No. 1 was presented to Danny Ford to go on permanent display at Jervy Athletic Center.)

THE PROVIDENCE HEART INSTITUTE IS BUILT ON SOMETHING SOLID.

The Providence Heart Institute's new building is one of the finest medical facilities in the country. But to a patient with a life-threatening heart disease, an attractive, efficient building isn't enough. What is important is inside the building—Providence people, with the experience gained in treating thousands of patients.

Providence has more adult cardiovascular experience than any other hospital in South Carolina. For over fifteen years we have been the state's leading referral center for the diagnosis and treatment of heart disease. Physicians and patients have long recognized our reputation for professional skills and compassionate care.

We're excited about our new building, equipped for state-of-the-art testing and treatment. But that building isn't the reason people come to the Providence Heart Institute. They come for what it's built on.

EXPERIENCE.

Columbia, South Carolina

The Clemson University athletic program is competitive on the national level. In the 1988-89 year Clemson was one of just eight schools in the country to have teams participate in a bowl game (1989 Citrus Bowl), the NCAA basketball tournament (1989 West Regional), and the NCAA baseball tournament (Atlantic Regional). Clemson was one of only three schools to gain at least one win in each postseason event, tied the ACC record for overall conference championships in an academic year and finished sixth in the national All-Sports poll.

The success of the Clemson athletic program comes during a time when the integrity and accountability of the academic progress of student athletes are receiving national attention. IPTAY has been a large part of this success by being committed to the student athlete.

IPTAY is recognized as one of the oldest, largest and most successful athletic fundraising organizations in America. IPTAY was the first athletic fundraising organization in the country to top the two, three, four and five-million dollar marks in annual donations. The 1988-89 academic year marks the 25th consecutive year of increased contributions to the IPTAY scholarship fund.

In 1934 Dr. Rupert Fike founded IPTAY with a very simple purpose in mind. IPTAY provides funds for athletic scholarships. Clemson continues to be one of the few schools in the nation to award the maximum number of scholarships allowed by the NCAA for 18 men's and women's varsity sports. Since 1934, IPTAY has provided scholarships for over 5,000 student athletes, trainers, and managers. In recent years an average of 450 student-athletes per year have been recipients of scholarships funded by IPTAY. IPTAY currently has a reserve fund to cover the scholarship costs for the student-athletes presently attending Clemson on athletic scholarships and scholarships committed to incoming freshman.

IPTAY currently provides the funds for tutorial programs staffed by trained academic advisors assisted by graduate and undergraduate students. This support is intended to assure that all student-athletes are given the opportunity to earn their degree while participating in athletics. Future plans include a commitment of IPTAY funds for a new $2.5 million Academic Learning Center.

The Academic Learning Center is a 29,000 square-foot facility. It will house the tutoring and advising program for student-athletes. The building will contain various sized study and tutoring rooms to be used for individual study as well as for small group instruction. Computer facilities, an office/reception area for the advising staff and an auditorium will also be contained in the facility. IPTAY is proud to be a part of the commitment on behalf of the athletic department administration to pursue academic success for all student-athletes.

The generous support of over 20,000 loyal donors to IPTAY has allowed the organization to go beyond the funding of athletic scholarships by providing the financial basis for many of the unparalleled athletic facilities at Clemson.

Since 1978, IPTAY has provided the funding for $32 million of capital improvements in the area of athletics. These improvements include the expansion of the football stadium, the newly renovated baseball facility (Tiger Field), the indoor tennis facility, the soccer stadium, the new outdoor track, the weight room, the new golf practice area, a new cross country course, and the IPTAY/Ticket office facility.

IPTAY is also proud to provide funding for the Tiger Band. Each year IPTAY budgets financial support for travel, uniforms and equipment for this integral part of the Clemson athletic program.

While IPTAY is primarily concerned with athletic fundraising, the mission of Clemson University has not been overlooked. The IPTAY Athletic Academic Endowment Scholarship was created to help meet the need for more academic scholarships for non-athletes who are highly qualified academically. This scholarship endowment is funded by certain company gifts which are made as a result of employee contributions to IPTAY. In addition, the athletic department has made generous contributions to the endowment from athletic revenues. The Athletic Academic Endowment Scholarship is presently the largest scholarship endowment at Clemson.

The tremendous success of IPTAY is due, in large part, to the organizational makeup which allows members to be as close to IPTAY as they are to their local IPTAY leadership. Each of South Carolina's 46 counties has an IPTAY County Chairman, and every county is allotted one IPTAY representative for every 35 members.

IPTAY donors are kept up-to-date with Clemson athletics through the Orange and White. This is an official IPTAY publication and distributed exclusively to IPTAY donors in appreciation of their support.

Clemson University will continue to be recognized and respected on the national level athletically and academically with the full support of IPTAY. IPTAY will continue to be successful because a loyal commitment to Clemson University is a way of life in the hearts of Clemson alumni and friends.

Allison Dalton is the Executive Secretary of IPTAY.

Band Program

By Caroline Werntz

The familiar sights and sounds of Tiger football welcome back Clemson alumni today for the 1989 Homecoming game with the Ramblin' Wreck of Georgia Tech. Today's game is a truly special event to the thousands of Clemson graduates who return to their alma mater to see old friends and relive old memories.

Many former members of Tiger Band plan on doing just that, as for the seventh consecutive year, the Tiger Alumni Band will make an appearance at halftime. This year's 200 piece ensemble is the largest ever and is sponsored by the Clemson University Tiger Band Alumni Association.

Many events occurring during the week allow the students to become involved in the pageantry of a Clemson Homecoming. All week long, members of the various fraternities worked day and night to build the floats displayed on Bowman Field. The floats were judged today prior to the game and the winners will be announced during the halftime festivities.

Also, Tigerama '89, "Cloak and Dagger Clemson" took place last evening. Tigerama, which was sponsored by Blue Key, consisted of a pep rally, student skits and fireworks, while close to 40,000 Tiger fans attended the event. This year's skits were presented by fraternities Sigma Nu and Kappa Sigma, the sororities of Delta Delta Delta, Kappa Kappa Gamma and Kappa Delta, and the Presbyterian Student Association.

All of the Homecoming events, of course, led up to today's matchup with Atlantic Coast Conference rival Georgia Tech. Pre-game festivities begin as guests-of-honor J. Ryan White and D.T. Harden "Dot the I". Mr. White, joined by his wife Cora, is the National President of the Alumni Association. He is a member of the Clemson Class of 1942, and currently resides in Walterboro, S.C.

Mr. Harden is regarded as the oldest living alumnus of the university. He is a member of the Class of 1912.

The show will continue as Dr. Richard Goodstein directs University Chorus and Tiger Band in "America the Beautiful." Dr. Bruce Cook then will lead the crowd in "The Star-Spangled Banner" as the Pershing Rifles, Company C-4 present the state and national colors. Director of Choral Activities Dr. Daniel Rash will then lead the musical organizations in a song close to the hearts of all Tiger faithful, the Clemson University Alma Mater.

The invocation today will be delivered by the Reverend Tom Willis, campus minister for the Baptist Student Union.

Tiger Band will conclude the pre-game festivities as "Sock It To 'Em" readies the crowd before the Tigers run down the hill for the 209th time to the tune of Tiger Rag!

A variety of halftime activities will include the Yellow Jacket band, which will take the field under the direction of Bucky Johnson and Assistant Director Carlisle Dent. Old favorites such as "Since I Fell For You," "Lazy River," and "Old Man River" will be presented to the Homecoming crowd. The Yellow Jackets are led by drum majors Alyssa Rutland and Rebecca McNally.

Tiger Band then will march up field in a salute to the armed services of the United States. The Army, Navy, Marines, Air Force and Coast Guard are all recognized in this "All-American" celebration. University Chorus then will issue a special halftime appearance and join Tiger Band in what is sure to be a stirring performance of "God Bless America."

Tiger fans will then be given the opportunity to meet the newly-crowned Homecoming Queen, who was named Friday night at Tigerama. Tiger Band will provide coronation music that features the familiar tune of "What I Did For Love," as a bouquet of red roses will be presented to the new queen by Alumni Association President J. Ryan White. The queen and her court will make their coronation ride on a float constructed by the brothers of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Halftime will conclude with the appearance of the Alumni Band, who will be wearing T-shirts graciously provided by Tiger Band. The band alumni will then join Tiger Band in what may be the largest ensemble to ever play "The Song That Shakes The Southland," TIGER RAG!!!

Tiger Band would like to thank the Sirrine Corporation for the breakfast and reception provided for the Alumni Band. Also, following the game, Tiger Band invites all former band members to drop by the Alumni Center for a reception in honor of their return to the Clemson campus.

This week's band feature takes a look at the 1989-90 drum majors for Tiger Band. Senior Deanna Taylor is an architecture major from Detroit, Michigan who is in her third consecutive year as drum major. In his first year in the position is junior Benny Gaskins. He is majoring in ceramic engineering and hails from Camden, SC. Tonya Smith is also in her first year as drum major. She is a junior studying elementary education, and calls Spartanburg, SC home. All three provide valuable leadership to the "Band That Shakes The Southland."

Tons of toxic chemicals are released into our environment each year.

Some are discharged by industry, or leak inadvertently from landfills and waste sites. Others are put there for a reason, such as controlling insect pests.

If the right pesticides are used properly, they can be very beneficial. Improperly used, they can present a hazard to the environment and to wildlife.

Documenting those impacts — and helping to resolve them — is the work of the Institute of Wildlife and Environmental Toxicology and its director, Ron Kendall.

Kendall is a recognized leader in his field. And the Institute's work is supported by more than $4 million in grants from EPA and other federal agencies, the National Wildlife Federation and industry.

Some of the most important and influential people in the state are at today's homecoming game for a close-up look at Clemson University and Tiger football.

The visit is the final stop by members of the South Carolina General Assembly who have gathered in the region for the first time to take part in "Upstate Upclose," a three-day program showcasing the area's contributions and importance to the state's economy.

"It's a chance to show our appreciation to the legislature for what they've done for us in the past and to educate them about how much revenue is produced in the Upstate," said Rudy Painter, who along with Spartanburg businessman Don Bain and Greenville businessman Jim Cockburn, is one of three co-chairmen for the event.

"We want to make sure the Upstate is looked at in the same way as the coast and other parts of the state," said Painter, president of Anderson Insurance Center. "We want them to realize it's not just the coast that produces revenue from tourism and gasoline taxes, but the Upstate as well."

Indeed, the seven-county region represents 26 percent of the state's population, employs 39 percent of its manufacturing workforce, generates more than a quarter of the total sales and gasoline tax revenues, accounts for nearly one-third of the total state income tax collections, created 40 percent of the new jobs statewide in 1987 and accounted for more than $1 billion in capital investment that same year.

"We also want them to recognize that much of our success has come through cooperation. It's not Greenville vs. Spartanburg or Spartanburg vs. Anderson, but a region united," said Painter. "By working together, we want to establish the region united," said Painter. "By working together, we want to establish the region as a model of cooperation for the rest of the state."

Jim Cockman said that while the Upstate clearly makes up the cornerstone of the state's economy, unity is an important factor in getting the attention of the state's lawmakers.

UPSTATE UPCLOSE

"We're the business capital of the state, and they (lawmakers) need to know why that's important to the whole state," said Cockman, who is chief executive officer of the Greenville-based PYA/Monarch, Inc. "While the seven counties contribute significantly to the state's revenue base, we're beginning to recognize the importance of presenting, even marketing, those contributions in a unified way and on a regional level to the state legislature."

Such unity is what made Upstate Upclose possible. More than a year in the works, the project was the brainchild of the Interstate 85 Corridor Group made up of members from the Anderson, Cherokee, Clemson, Easley, Greenville, Greer, Laurens and Spartanburg Chambers of Commerce. Having already sponsored Upstate Chamber Week and Upstate Day in Columbia, the group decided that the best way to show lawmakers what is happening in the Upstate is to give them a firsthand look.

Instead of formal tours of industrial sites and other points of interest, the program has given the guests a taste of the good life the Upstate offers. On Thursday, after a reception at the Greenville-Spartanburg airport, they were chauffeured to Converse College for a show by the song-and-dance troupe "The Capitol Steps" from Washington, D.C.

Yesterday, the group was treated to a multi-media tour of the Upstate at Roper Mountain Science Center, followed by a series of short talks from average folks who live in the region.

The rest of the day was set aside for fun with golf, fishing, tennis, boating and a variety of other activities and entertainment events showcasing the area's natural resources.

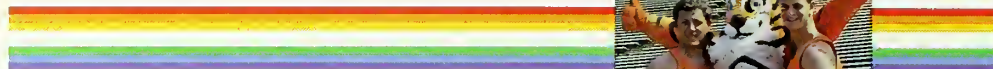

The program's final day was specifically planned for today's homecoming festivities to highlight Clemson University's role in the region.

"Certainly Clemson University is a vital part of the Upstate, not only as an institution of higher education but as one of the area's largest employers," Painter said. "It just seemed fitting to close Upstate Upclose at Clemson."

Clemson University and its athletic programs are major factors in the economy of upstate South Carolina.

Johnny Rembert

by Jeff Rhodes

It never fails. Anytime Tiger fans get together to watch highlights or games from the 1981 or '82 football seasons on videotape, the statement is invariably made — "Gosh, I wish Johnny Rembert had played four years for us." Number 90 was a memorable player who played an important part in two of Clemson's best years ever.

Rembert, who came to Clemson as a junior college All-America selection, started his career with an interception against Wofford. He made big plays in other games, including tackling Georgia's Herschel Walker for a five-yard loss in the 13-3 epic Clemson win in 1981, and he really came on strong late in the season. His biggest play in the National Championship year, though, came against South Carolina.

Early in the game, Rod McSwain blocked a punt and Rembert alertly pounced on the ball for a touchdown. That play shifted the momentum of the game to the Tigers' favor and allowed Clemson to close its first perfect regular season in 33 years. "Winning the National Championship is every player's dream," Rembert said recently. "Of course, just playing against South Carolina is always a great thrill."

Rembert, who somewhere along the line had picked up the nickname "Johnny Ringo," had a stellar season in 1982. He started nine of ten games (he missed one with an injury) and finished second on the team in tackles behind All-America Terry Kinard. Rembert was named ACC Defensive Lineman of the Week for his 10-tackle, one-interception day against Duke.

Rembert finished the year with 64 total tackles, made eight tackles for loss, broke up five passes, and recorded six interceptions, an all-time Clemson record for a linebacker. He was named All-State, All-ACC, third-team All-American according to Football News, and was selected for the Blue-Gray Game and the Senior Bowl.

Although Rembert missed those post-season all-star games, his performance during the season had so impressed the pro scouts that he was selected in the fourth round of the NFL draft by the New England Patriots. As he did at Clemson, Rembert has improved markedly in every one of his seven years in the Sunday afternoon play-for-play league. He has improved so much, in fact, that he was a starter in the Pro Bowl last January.

"I think the key to my improvement has just been learning what the NFL is about," said Rembert, who is starting his second year as a full-time starter. "I think the most difficult thing to learn is how to react in certain situations. You have to learn different roads (of the offense) and you certainly have more responsibilities than you do in college."

Another big change Rembert has had to make in his particular pro football situation is facing the definitely-not-South Carolina weather in the Boston, MA, area. "Without a doubt, the weather is difficult to get used to," said Rembert, who hails from Florida and spends many of his off-seasons in Virginia. "It really gets cold up here. Last year we played Tampa Bay in the last game and it was 30 (degrees) below (zero) with the wind chill. You kind of cringe when you have to hit someone."

While he may have cringed, he certainly did hit last year. The 6-3, 234-pound Rembert led the Patriots in first hits with 98, and finished second on the team in tackles with 137. At season's end he was named to Paul Zimmerman's All-NFL team in Sports Illustrated. He was named AFC Defensive Player of the Week for his 18-tackle performance against Miami last November. Rembert had three sacks in 1988, which put him in a tie for third-best on the team.

But Johnny Rembert has never been just a tackler, and 1988 was no exception. He also led New England in fumble recoveries (three), defended 12 passes (which tied for second on the team), and picked off a pair of opponent passes.

A big factor in what propelled the 28-year-old Rembert to his All-Pro season was staying healthy the whole year. His all-out style of play has resulted in a series of minor injuries throughout his football career that have kept him from even greater achievements.

The major driving factor in Rembert's '88 season, though, was New England head coach Raymond Berry. Before the first game, Coach Berry said publicly that he thought Rembert had the talent to make the Pro Bowl. It proved to be prophetic, as Rembert made the trip to Hawaii in February. "That quote showed me that Coach Berry knows what kind of player I am," said Rembert. "After I had a few good games early in the year, I used that quote for motivation. But getting to the playoffs as a team is the most important motivational factor. After that comes the individual goals."

He has played in 86 games for the Patriots since 1983 and he plans to play in many more. "I want to play until I can't help the team anymore. I'd like people to remember Johnny Rembert as a dependable player. When somebody was needed to make something happen, I was the one who was able to do it."

Most football fans, both in Clemson and in Boston, would say that has already happened.

Rembert was chosen All-Pro by Sports Illustrated last year when he led the Patriots in tackles (photo for Thomas Croke).

The Last Word

By Bob Bradley

Frank Howard carried 14 teams to Atlanta to play Georgia Tech. Most of the time he'd come home unhappy because only in his sixth year (1945) as head coach, and in his last (1969) did the Tigers come away with a victory.

Bobby Dodd was in his initial season as head coach in '45 and supposedly did not scout the Tigers and some say, he started his second team.

Howard in the meantime supposedly slipped an army colonel a fifth of booze and this gave Butch Butler a 90-day leave out of service in order to play tailback for Clemson. As it turned out, the Tigers won that game, 21-7.

But Howard would suffer any number of heartbreaks in his trips to Grant Field (or Grant's Tomb as he referred to it sometimes). 'Tis true the Yellow Jackets usually had superior players and more than adequate numbers for the Tigers to match. But there were several times Clemson deserved better fate.

There didn't appear to be much hope for the '69 aggregation on its trip to Atlanta. The Tigers had opened the season with a 20-14 win over Virginia in Charlottesville, but had lost 30-0 the next weekend to Georgia at home.

By the time kickoff came, the coaches' wives had already run the gauntlet at Lenox Square and filled their car trunks with packages. It was just a little over two months until Christmas and many were thinking about Santa Claus. And neither Seneca, Central nor Pendleton had a Rich's or Davison's ... and still don't.

By the time the season was over, Howard's stocking would be pretty bare, but on this October day, it would be Thanksgiving and Christmas all rolled into one. However, at halftime things were darker than midnight for the Tigers.

The Yellow Jackets were up 10-0 on the strength of a touchdown scored on a five-yard pass from Andy Dudish to Steve Foster with just 12 seconds left in the first half. Georgia Tech would have the second half kickoff coming back. What more momentum could any coach ask for?

However, three running plays netted just seven yards for the Jackets and on a punt that traveled just 26 yards, Georgia Tech was penalized for a personal foul to its 38.

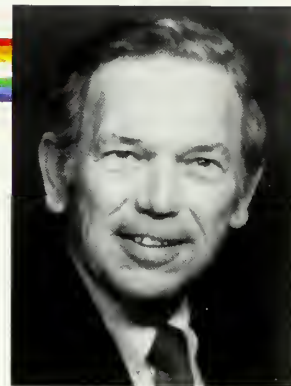

Clemson tailback Ray Yauger, who opened the game with a 35-yard run and had 64 yards at halftime, went up the middle on a trap play for 28 yards. On the next play, Tommy Kendrick passed 10 yards to Yauger for a touchdown and the Tigers crept to within three points of a tie.

The teams traded interceptions and punts the rest of the quarter until Clemson gained control at its own 23 with 2:01 left in the third period.

With two exceptions, Kendrick and/or Yauger handled the ball on every play. A nine-play, 77-yard drive gave Clemson the lead it would keep.

After Kendrick lost three yards on the drive's first play, Yauger went wide left for 25, and then got a single yard on his next run. Kendrick passed to Charlie Waters for 12 yards before Yauger ate up 20 more yards off the right side on the late play of the third quarter.

This gave the Tigers a first down at the Georgia Tech 23. To open the final 15 minutes, Kendrick was true to Waters again for 19 yards to the three, but Clemson was put back five on a procedure penalty. Howard probably thought his ole "Grant's Tomb Luck" was coming to haunt him one more time.

But Yauger, who settled down in Atlanta after his playing days and still lives there, and Kendrick misfired on a pass before Yauger got three to the three. On their next endeavor, Kendrick and Yauger did connect with the go-ahead score. Jimmy Barnette kicked the second of his three extra points for a 14-10 Clemson lead.

Each team recorded three first downs apiece in its next possession, but when a Clemson drive stalled at the Tech 30, Sammy Cain punted and the ball was downed at the two. On the first play John O'Neill (now the Georgia Tech senior associate athletic director) passed complete to Herman Lam for 14 yards, but Steve Harkey fumbled on the next play.

Clemson's Arthur Craig alertly picked the ball up (in mid-air) at the 18 and returned it 12 yards to the six. Yauger took two cracks before going in to score from two yards out with 6:52 remaining in the game. The Tigers held a 21-10 lead and Howard wanted to smell the roses, but he was afraid of the thorns he had felt so many times before in these confines.

O'Neill moved his team to the Clemson 46 before a fourth-down pass fell incomplete. But, the Jackets got the ball back on a punt three plays later. After a 15-yard first down pass, O'Neill had four passes fall incomplete.

Clemson got the ball back with 2:05 showing, but couldn't move again and Cain was forced to punt again. But this time he was roughed, the Tigers got the ball back and in two plays, the game was over.

This was Howard's 163rd victory. He would get only two more before retiring at the end of the season. The man whom he beat was in his third season after succeeding the legendary Bobby Dodd, and would last only two more campaigns at Georgia Tech.

But today this coach — Bud Carson — is Michael Dean Perry's head coach with the Cleveland Browns.

Yauger, running from his new position at tailback, gained 146 yards rushing and caught three passes for 27 yards and scored all three Tiger touchdowns. Carson on Yauger: "He was a great back on Grant Field this afternoon. He broke tackle after tackle and did everything you can ask a great back to do."

The accompanying picture shows Howard in his victory ride. He got a lot of 'em during his colorful career, but maybe this one might have been the most satisfying.

Frank Howard's most satisfying win might have taken place in his final year, when he guided the Tigers to a 21-10 win over Georgia Tech in Atlanta.
